Dr. Woodward Asks Citizens to Begin Early This Year to Combat the Pests.

That there are fewer flies in Wash-gained from the various crusades against the fly that Washingtonians should not fall to follow it up and make every effort to rid the city of its greatest health menace," said Dr. William C. Woodward, health officer, today, "Citizens should immediately install screens in their homes and provide themselves with 'swatters' and other devices for combating every fly that comes on the premises. The advantage of killing the early fly and thereby preventing the development of millions of the insects later in the season can scarcely be exaggerated.

"The recent clean-up crusade has greatly reduced the number of insanitary places which would serve as breeding places for flies and the time is opportune for striking a blow at the pest that will bring permanent improvement in the health of the community."

Making Fly Traps.

Dr. Woodward is taking great interpolice stations. It was this official who taking steps of its own to combat the fly nuisance.

The traps which The Star will present to the District to be used at its fly pounds are being made at the Gospel Mission and will be ready for district markets and the fish market on Water street, thirteen in the police stations and thirty-seven in the fire stations.

As soon as the traps are delivered the Commissioners will issue an order requiring officials in charge of the various markets and stations to keep them balted and in use constantly. The District hopes to set an example that citizens will follow and to be the leader in a municipal fly-flighting campaign that eventually will become national in its scope.

Manie. I sometimes wonder
If you know of the scalding tears
That fall in the wee hours of the night,
Or the weary heart you left sad.
But today when I look down
The visin of two dreary years.
To the morning I stood by your bed,
With your cold hands in mine.
And heard you with your parting breath
Say, "Oh, sister I am gaing."

Say, "Oh, sister, I am goin I know that the mist that e Is still hiding me from you. Or else I would understand.

Two years have passed
Since I heard voice,
Yet in memory I hear you sing.
When my life work is ended
And across the swelling tide,
When that bright and glorious morning
I shall see, I will know my Redeemer
When I reach the other side.
For His smile will be
The first to welcome me.
Through the gates of that city
He will lead me.
Where no tears will ever fall.
In the glad songs of ages
I will mingle with delight.
But I long to meet
My Sactor first of all.
